While our Insured was at work, electrical problems with a bedroom dehumidifier triggered a massive fire resulting in significant smoke and fire damage to our Insured's home.

Though the fire was extinguished within approximately 15 minutes, the Insured's home and personal belongings were still damaged. The flames ignited combustible materials within the house, causing the fire to spread further through the bedroom and into an adjoining storeroom. The Singapore Civil Defence Force (SCDF) determined the incident was accidental.

While preparing chili paste in her kitchen, our Insured accidentally injures her finger and seeks immediate medical attention. The doctor determined the Insured's ring must be cut off in order to administer treatment and limit the swelling. Given the issue's exigency and medical necessity, AIG paid for the cost incurred to restore her ring.
